Foreword

We are honoured to provide this foreword for the Vanuatu National Labour Mobility Policy on behalf of the government and people of Vanuatu.

The participation of ni-Vanuatu workers in international labour mobility and seasonal workers programmes has contributed to many positive benefits for individual workers, their families and communities but also contributed to Vanuatu's development as a nation.

Labour mobility programmes offer significant economic benefits by providing Vanuatu with access to overseas job markets that generate remittances contributing to our nations GDP. Seasonal work programs, in particular, provide opportunities for Vanuatu's workforce to gain employment in sectors such as agriculture and horticulture, fostering skill development and knowledge transfer, all of which support our long-term sustainable development in Vanuatu.

This Policy and Action Plan is significant and will set the direction for Vanuatu's participation in labour mobility programmes moving forward. It aims to do so in a way that further increases the development benefits for all involved but at the same time addresses and mitigates the challenges and issues that have arisen through our increased participation in these schemes. These opportunities must be balanced to ensure the protection of ni-Vanuatu workers' rights and welfare as well as family and community structures and our domestic labour market and economy, all of which have been addressed in the five (5) Pillars within this Policy.

This Policy is the first revision and replaces the previous National Labour Mobility Policy from 2019. We thank the many stakeholders and development partners that contributed to the review of the previous policy and the development of this new Policy.

Executive Summary

The Government of Vanuatu has developed the National Labour Mobility Policy and Action Plan 2024-2027 with the vision of governing and facilitating labour mobility for ni-Vanuatu workers in a way that increases sustainable livelihoods, communities and economic development and mitigates the negative impacts of Vanuatu's participation in labour mobility schemes, both current and future. This Policy has been developed following the review of the previous National Labour Mobility Policy of 2019.

The vision and mission of this Policy will be achieved through the realisation of the Policy goals, specifically:

- Refocusing Vanuatu's engagement in labour mobility as a programme for sustainable development that reflects our national priorities and pursues strategic data-driven, evidence-based programme options
- Enabling ni-Vanuatu workers, their families and communities to set and achieve their development goals through increased opportunities to access support within each step in the circular mobility process and improve reintegration success
- Strategically approach labour mobility supply and management, to better connect quality labour supply from Vanuatu with quality work opportunities from employers
- Strengthening domestic, bi-lateral and regional cooperation to achieve the above goals, and improve worker welfare and benefits
- Ensuring child-centred family and community social protections are in place, particularly in relation to child welfare and protection, gender and disability inclusions, community safety, disaster management, and adequate support is provided to safeguard family and community structures

These goals are aligned to the five (5) Policy Pillars, each of which have policy priority areas and output to ensure effective management of Vanuatu's strategic engagement in labour mobility programs and protect the rights and well-being of workers, their families, communities and our economy. The Policy Priority Areas and Outputs will be implemented by Vanuatu Government agencies and development partners through the activities within the Action Plan in Annex I.

Pillar 1, Legislative and Institutional Reform, aims to improve the regulation and inclusiveness of labor mobility recruitment by reforming existing legislation and institutional arrangements with decentralisation of government services will provide equitable opportunities across all six (6) provinces.

Pillar 2, Data Collection, Systems, and Coordination, focuses on enhancing data collection to improve accountability and decision-making. The In-Country Recruitment Database (IRD) will have a crucial role in this regard, with initiatives to increase its adoption, expand functionality, and improve accessibility. Cross-agency information sharing and analysis are emphasised to facilitate compliance monitoring with data privacy and protection

Pillar 3, Labour Mobility Supply Management and Reintegration Strategy, aims to strategically approach labour mobility for increased decent work opportunities, skills transfer, and successful reintegration for Vanuatu's benefit. This pillar emphasises expanding support and capacity-building opportunities both in Vanuatu and while workers are employed overseas, identifying and engaging with programs and employers strategically, and promoting investment, entrepreneurship, and career opportunities within Vanuatu. It also aims to address domestic labour market shortages and gaps resulting from high levels of participation in labour mobility opportunities through improved incentives to maintain and grow the domestic labour market, including eased regulatory requirements to engage foreign workers where needed.

Under Pillar 4, Child-Centered Family and Community Social Protections, the government focuses on mitigating negative impacts on children, families, and communities resulting from labour mobility. Initiatives include pre-departure workshops, increased support for child welfare cases, mechanisms to assess and restrict parents' participation at the same time, addressing anti-social behaviors of returned workers, and improving family and community preparedness for unforeseen circumstances, including natural disasters.

Pillar 5, Worker Welfare and Benefits, focuses on promoting and advocating for better working conditions, contractual terms, and accessible in-country support and benefits for ni-Vanuatu workers engaged in labour mobility programs. The priority areas and outputs include reviewing existing bi-lateral agreements and collaborating with receiving country governments to enhance benefits for ni-Vanuatu workers, and advocating for alignment of these agreements with international standards. There is a focus on increased support for workers before departure and while in-country, as well as reducing rates and fees through negotiations G2G, private sector and other service providers.

The governance and implementation arrangements for this Policy include a Ministerial-level Steering Committee, with representation from the Ministries of Internal Affairs (MoIA); Foreign Affairs, International Cooperation and External Trade (MFAICET); Agriculture, Livestock, Fisheries, Forests and Biosecurity (MALFFB); Tourism, Trade, Industry, Commerce and Ni-Vanuatu Business (MTTCNVB); and Ministry of Education and Training (MoET). The Ministerial Steering Committee reports to the National Trade Development Committee. The Department of Labour and the Department of External Trade share overall responsibility for the implementation of the Policy and Action Plan 2024-2027, with support from the Labour Migration Council and its Committees on Licencing, Labour Mobility Supply Management and Reintegration, and Labour Mobility Programme Integrity as well as the Labour Mobility Working Group. The Policy prioritises reform of the governance of labour mobility through Public Service Commission (PSC) approved changes the Department of Labour's institutional arrangements and regulation of recruitment of workers under the Seasonal Employment Act.

In summary, the National Labour Mobility Policy outlines a comprehensive framework to enhance governance, transparency, and accountability. By implementing the policy outputs, the Government of Vanuatu and development partners will ensure fair labour recruitment practices, effective monitoring, and support systems for workers and their families, thereby maximizing the development benefits of labour mobility while minimising its potential negative impacts.

1 Introduction

1.1 National Labour Mobility Policy: Rationale for Review

Vanuatu has been engaged in labour mobility programmes since 2007. In 2019, the Government developed the Vanuatu National Labour Mobility Policy (LM Policy 2019), which focused on being an 'enabling mechanism to address Vanuatu's own labour market needs, organise its institutions, boost regulation, and level the playing field between employers and workers. The LM Policy 2019 also aimed to guide the management and welfare of workers engaged in labour migration and address the economic and social objectives of the National Sustainable Development Plan (NSDP) in order to increase decent work opportunities, which also recognise and respect workers' rights, and enable more inclusive opportunities. Much progress has been made on the implementation of the LM Policy 2019, particularly in terms of capacity building and resource allocation for the labour mobility operations within the ESU. At the same time, implementation of key policy areas remains unimplemented and require renewed commitments to realise many of the original policy objectives.

Over the past four (4) years, the labour mobility landscape has changed. The global impacts of Covid-19 and Vanuatu's unique covid-free status for the 2 years of the pandemic lead to a significant increase in ni-Vanuatu workers participating in the labour mobility schemes, and many for extended periods. Vanuatu also ratified the Pacific Agreement on Closer Economic Relations Plus (PACER Plus) and its Annex on the Arrangement of Labour Mobility, which provides for a regional framework for labour mobility cooperation to enhance the development impacts of labour mobility in the region. The Pacific labour mobility schemes have also changed over this period with the alignment of the Australian Seasonal Worker Programme (SWP) and Pacific Labour Scheme (PLS) under the Pacific Australia Labour Mobility Scheme (PALM) and the New Zealand Recognised Seasonal Employer Scheme (RSE) is also undergoing a major policy review (ongoing at the time the development of this policy).

Increased participation rates in the labour mobility programmes have also led positive development gains in terms of improving the standard of living for workers that have the opportunity to participate and by extension their families and communities. However, key development issues associated to these high participation rates have also become prevalent through the rising negative social impacts on families and communities and 'brain drain' within the domestic labour market in both the private sector and public service.

These factors prompted to the Vanuatu Government initiating a review of the LM Policy 2019, with the intent of renewing commitments and ensuring the policy delivers on national development priorities, as well as address the growing negative impacts and increase the sustainable development benefits of labour mobility for Vanuatu.

1.2 Policy Process

The review of LM Policy 2019 and development of this Policy were commenced in February 2023 through the support of the PACER Plus Implementation Unit.

The process involved the establishment of a 'National Labour Mobility Steering Committee' as envisaged by the LM Policy 2019 which proposed an ad hoc policy review committee be formed as a review team. The Steering Committee was appointed by the Minister of Foreign Affairs, International Cooperation and External Trade (MFAICET) with representation from the Department of External Trade, Department of Labour, the Ministry of Agriculture, Livestock, Fisheries, Forestry and Biosecurity (MALFFB), Ministry of Ministry of Tourism, Trade, Commerce & Ni-Vanuatu Business (MTTCNVB) and Vanuatu Qualifications Authority (VQA). The role of the Steering Committee was to provide direction, input and approve key components of the review process and policy development.

The review process involved review of the implementation progress under the LM Policy 2019; review of the existing labour mobility schemes, national policies, comparative analysis of labour mobility policies and strategies within the region, reports and publications, international agreements, standards and best practices; and consultations.

The consultation process involved surveys with follow up interviews with individual key informants (Labour Mobility Working Group members, Government and civil society stakeholders), in-person community consultations in 11 communities across 3 islands (Santo, Efate and Epi) , online surveys with agents (33), online and in-person questionnaires ni-Vanuatu labour mobility workers (approx. 200) and online submissions from the general public. Consultations were communicated by the Department of Labour's Employment Services Unit (ESU) via email networks, Facebook page, website and phone. The Consultation Report was submitted as a supplementary report to the Council of Ministers with the Policy.

1.3 Policy Context

The National Labour Mobility Policy complements the existing policy framework in Vanuatu. It supports and facilitates the development of specific policy objectives under the NSDP other national policies or policy frameworks including the:

- National Human Resources Development Policy
- Trade Policy Framework Update
- National Gender Equality Policy
- National Child Protection Policy
- National Disability Inclusion Development Policy
- Framework for Reintegration of Agriculture Workers in Labour Mobility

1. Note: The islands and communities approached for consultations were selected based on the high participation rates in the labour mobility schemes, followed by accessibility. Community consultations were also planned on Tanna/Tanauta Island, however, TCs Julie and Kevin impacted on the accessibility and timing of the planned consultations.

The Policy has also been developed to support the implementation of the PACER Plus Agreement and aims to build on existing obligations under international conventions, agreements, and standards by incorporating many best practice recommendations available on migrant rights and labour mobility appropriate within the context of labour mobility in Vanuatu.

Many of the international standards and best practice recommendations relate to Government to Government (G2G) arrangements, which are governed by the programme Memorandums of Understanding (MOUs), Deeds of Agreement (Deeds) and Implementation Arrangements (IAs). Recommendations for improving rights, protections and benefits for ni-Vanuatu workers in Australia and New Zealand under the Labour Mobility Programmes are detailed in Annex III: Policy Output Recommendations: Pillar 5.

MOUs, Deeds and IAs currently exist between Vanuatu and Australia (PALM (PLS/SWP)) and New Zealand (RSE).

Labour Mobility Trends

As of May 2023, there are approximately 16,000 ni-Vanuatu workers in Australia (11,000) and New Zealand (5000). This estimate is based on visa application data provided by the Australian and New Zealand Governments, Vanuatu's two largest labour markets. Other markets and opportunities exist for ni-Vanuatu workers in New Caledonia and MSG countries through the Skills Movement Scheme, however, participation rates are negligible compared to the Australian and New Zealand labour mobility programmes. Vanuatu does not currently collect data on mobilised ni-Vanuatu labour mobility workers.

Vanuatu has the largest sending numbers in the region under both the Australian and New Zealand schemes. This has largely been attributed to the agent model of recruitment.

An estimated 10-20 percent of Vanuatu's labour force have participated in the labour mobility programmes over the past 6 months based on this data. This estimate is based on data from the National Statistics Office (2020 Census) and the World Bank (2021), on Vanuatu's active labour force which ranges between 83,778 and 132,757 of the total population of 317,137 (World Bank 2021).

These participation rates are significantly higher than the national unemployment in Vanuatu. The ILO modelled unemployment rate is 2.1 percent and the VNSO 2020 unemployment rate is higher at 6 percent, however, both include workers engaged in non-wage employment.

Numbers of ni-Vanuatu overseas workers are not evenly distributed between provinces with 52.1 percent of worker being from Shefa province, 17.3 percent from Sanma, 11 percent from each Malampa and Tafea, 4.6 percent from Penama and 4 percent from Torba (Census 2020). These numbers are not exclusive to labour mobility workers and may have shifted given the significant increase in labour mobility participation numbers since 2020. However, still important given perceptions around uneven distribution of labour mobility opportunities gathered during consultations.

Participation rates of women in the labour mobility schemes is relatively low and estimated to be only 1/6 of the participation rates of men. The sectors active within the labour mobility scheme are predominately agriculture and viticulture, where employers generally preferring to hire male employees given the physical intensity of the work. However, newer sectors such as horticulture, aged care, hospitality and tourism are seeing increases in women's participation in the programmes.

- National Disability Inclusion Development Policy

The return rates of workers (workers participating in more than one contract under the schemes) are readily available. Research based on New Zealand visa data sets estimates that approximately only half of the ni-Vanuatu workers participate in more than one season/contract. Surveys data collected from a small sampling of ni-Vanuatu workers suggest higher return rates, which are contributing to community perceptions of return workers limiting opportunities for other ni-Vanuatu workers seeking to enter the schemes.

Key Issues

The previous Labour Mobility Policy developed in 2019 (LM Policy 2019) identified a number of key issues prevalent within Vanuatu's engagement in labour mobility programmes. The statements within the LM Policy 2019 aimed to increase labour mobility opportunities and more equitably in terms of the opportunities reaching all of rural Vanuatu and greater numbers of women and people with disabilities. It also aimed to better match Vanuatu's skills development with overseas employers, improve the governance of labour mobility, strengthen social and economic benefits, maintain Vanuatu's attractiveness and receiving country trust, reduce costs for workers and ensure their well-being is protected. Each of these statements continue to be relevant in the current labour mobility context, however, the prioritisation of some of these policy areas have been reviewed and adjusted under this Policy. The growing prevalence and awareness of the negative impacts of Vanuatu's engagement in labour mobility need to be addressed to ensure the sustainability of the programmes, but more importantly the sustainability of the Vanuatu economy, communities and families.

These negative impacts and issues include perceptions around unfair, unethical and unequally distributed opportunities due to the existing recruitment arrangements and practices around Vanuatu. Reports of worker applicants being exploited in terms of unpaid labour, illegal fees, political votes and gifts demanded to qualify for selection were confirmed by workers and communities throughout the review of the Policy. These issues combined with issues involving workers while overseas, in particularly anti-social behaviours involving alcohol abuse, disengagement with employers (more commonly referred to as 'abscondment' in Vanuatu) and low performance due to poorly selected workers, are jeopardising the integrity and reputation of Vanuatu's labour mobility programmes. Pillar 1 under this Policy aims to address these issues through legislative and institutional reform.

Threats to the sustainability of Vanuatu's economy have become more prevalent with growing concerns being raised by the private sector initially and later the public service about 'brain drain' – in other words, the recruitment of skilled and employed workers active within the domestic labour market for labour mobility programmes. This has resulted in domestic employers having increased staff turnover, skills gaps and in the worst cases business closures. Communities have also reported loss of skills or 'brawn drain' – the loss of productive labour, and the provision of government services due to recruitment taking place within the public service itself, with specific mention of teachers and police officers applying for the programmes. Although there have been some success stories of entrepreneurship, business development and investment by labour mobility workers that would contribute to economic growth, this is not being measured or connected to Vanuatu's development goals in any significant way. Pillar 2 and 3 under this Policy aim to address these issues through improved data collection systems and a strategic approach to labour mobility supply management and reintegration efforts.

The negative impacts on families and communities cannot be understated. Communities have reported high levels of anti-social behaviour predominately connected with alcohol abuse from the majority of return workers in Vanuatu, in many cases encouraging underage children to undertake these activities with them. In addition to this, increased pressures from family separation resulting in domestic violence or divorce, the negative impacts on children being left with grandparents and extended family while both parents travel or have separated after participating in labour mobility programmes, in few cases child-headed households, children being removed from school to focus on labour mobility opportunities for the family or in the future, and a loss of 'strong workmen' in the village to support community work and rebuild after natural disasters. Pillar 4 under this Policy aims to address these issues by incorporating better safeguards, particularly for children, in vulnerable situations and increased support to communities to address these issues.

Worker welfare and benefits is the last category of issues impacting on the performance of workers and the labour mobility programmes more generally. Current employment agreements and the arrangements under the bi-lateral MOUs, Deeds of Agreement and Implementation Arrangements enable some level of worker exploitation. The most common examples reported in terms of this related to accommodation arrangements, distribution of the transport and visa costs between employers and workers, minimum versus average hours of work per week, medical checks and insurance coverage, clarity around permitted deductions, access to culturally sensitive support available in the receiving country, lack of support to understand contractual terms, contract amendments in receiving country, and manipulation of piece and hourly rates. Other issues impacting on workers related to the cost and reliability of transport out of Vanuatu, the cost and standards of accommodation, and foreign exchange services fees. Pillar 5 under this Policy aims to address these issues by identifying areas for further negotiation between Government parties to the bi-lateral agreements and private sector partners.

Opportunities

This Policy has been developed with regard to some of the opportunities identified during the review. Some of these opportunities include initiatives and discussions in Australia and New Zealand around expanding the programmes into a more diverse range of sectors, such as aged care, trade and construction, forestry, fisheries and hospitality and tourism. Although there is some activity and participation in these sectors already, there would be much to gain in taking a strategic approach to Vanuatu's engagement in these sectors in terms of skills development and transfer targeting reintegration success. The same applies for new labour mobility and migration opportunities that will be offered through Australia's proposed Pacific Engagement Visa, which has potential to address forced family separation and offer children of ni-Vanuatu workers access to Australia's high-quality education system.

Reviews of the programmes, MOUs, Deeds and IAs have been initiated and will be ongoing. National Policies such as the Skills Development Policy, Private Sector Development Policy and the National Employment Policy are all in the process of development. The timing of this Policy is opportune for pursuing the priority areas identified within the Policy with clear direction for Vanuatu's engagement in the programmes and ensure linkages and acknowledgement in other national policies.

A number of other Pacific Island Countries (PICs) have also developed policies and strategies for labour mobility that have been considered in this Policy. Developments around strategic approaches to labour mobility supply management and reintegration programmes, community recruitment models, expanded functionality of databases and other technology (e.g. self-registration apps) around the region have all influenced the direction of this Policy and create opportunities for Vanuatu to continue being engaged in innovation in labour mobility. By already being a member state of PIFS and the recent ratification of the PACER Plus Agreement, providing a framework for regional labour mobility dialogue, Vanuatu also has the opportunity to engage and drive its agenda within a regional forum, where collective advocacy by PICs and the development of regional labour mobility strategy can support the implementation and success of this Policy.

Finally, international developments in relation to labour mobility can become opportunities for Vanuatu provided there are mechanisms or sufficient flexibility within the Policy for their consideration. The development of the Labour Mobility Supply Management and Reintegration Strategy under this Policy provides a mechanism to incorporate international opportunities still in development at the time of review. These opportunities include shifts away from agri-visas offered to non-Pacific Island countries within the region that could potentially be filled by Vanuatu and other Pacific Island countries, as well as agreements in negotiation with the European Union, the UK and other countries with provisions on services and labour supply, in some cases with Mode IV market access. Vanuatu's geo-political positioning has the potential to present a greater range of opportunities for Vanuatu as a source destination of labour supply and higher demand for ni-Vanuatu workers. However, Vanuatu's engagement in such opportunities need to be strategically planned for in relation to the nations own development goals to mitigate negative impacts and pressures on the domestic labour market and economic growth.

2 Policy Vision, Mission and Goals

Vision

To govern and facilitate labour mobility for ni-Vanuatu workers in a way that increases individual, community and economic development benefits and mitigates negative impacts for individual workers and their families, communities, the domestic labour market and the national economy.

Mission

For sustainable livelihoods, communities and economic development to be achieved in Vanuatu through the contribution of ni-Vanuatu workers participation in labour mobility programmes.

Goals

The Policy's vision and mission are to be achieved by:

- Refocusing Vanuatu's engagement in labour mobility as a programme for sustainable development that reflects our national priorities and pursues strategic data-driven, evidence-based programme options
- Enabling ni-Vanuatu workers, their families and communities to set and achieve their development goals through increased opportunities to access support within each step in the circular mobility process and improve reintegration success
- Strategically approaching labour mobility supply and management, to better connect quality labour supply from Vanuatu with quality work opportunities from employers, whilst also ensuring opportunities within the domestic labour market continue to grow
- Ensuring child-centred, family and community social protections are in place, particularly in relation to child welfare and protection, gender and disability inclusions, community safety, disaster management, and adequate support is provided to safeguard family and community structures
- Strengthening domestic, bi-lateral and regional cooperation to achieve the above goals, and improve worker welfare and benefits

3 Policy Pillars, Priority Areas and Outputs

Pillar 1: Legislative and institutional reform

Policy Objective: To reform the existing legislation and institutional arrangements to provide for the effective implementation of this policy and improve the governance, transparency and accountability of the administration of labour mobility in Vanuatu.

The LM Policy 2019 included policy priority areas targeting legislative and institutional reform. Priority 7 aimed to 'improve the integrity of Vanuatu's recruitment process and increase protection for workers by ensuring high levels of compliance with the legislated and regulatory requirements for labour mobility'. This was again reflected in Priority 11.

The Priority Areas under this Policy Objective build on Priority 7 and 10 of the LM Policy 2019 and aims to address the key issues prevalent in Vanuatu's labour mobility administration, management and regulation in the present context. The Priority Areas also envisage legislative and institutional reform as a mechanism to increase labour mobility opportunities to a wider range of people, and improve the efficiency, effectiveness and trust in the recruitment, selection and preparation of workers for all actors involved at each step of the process, linked to Priorities 1, 2, 5, 11 and 12 of the LM Policy 2019 respectively.

The Priority Outputs provide the mechanisms for pursuing the Pillar 1 Policy Objectives and Priority Areas and are focused on addressing the key issues. In more specific terms, the Policy Outputs will reform the Seasonal Employment Act to create incentives to improve equal opportunities to access and participate in the labour mobility programmes for rural communities, women and people with disabilities. These incentives will be linked to agents license and direct recruitment permit renewals, but will be supported by more decentralised government services, improved systems and procedures for character checks, and capacity building support specifically for agents to support worker registration and enable more efficient, transparent and accountable recruitment and worker selection through the Work Ready Pool and In-Country Recruitment Database. It is proposed that the team leader recruitment model be removed to support this.

The Policy Outputs will also reform the institutional arrangements relating to the regulation of licenses and permits, including applications, renewals, monitoring, compliance and a new complaints mechanism under the Seasonal Employment Act, with the intention of separating the promotion and facilitation of labour mobility from its regulation and provide greater clarity in the roles of the different agencies involved based on good governance principles.

Priority Areas:

1. Improving the regulation, fairness and inclusiveness of labour mobility recruitment for workers, agents and employers
2. Strengthening the institutional arrangements governing and administering labour mobility to improve efficiency, transparency, accountability and greater clarity on different actors' functions and responsibilities
3. Effective mechanisms for monitoring and evaluating compliance

Policy Outputs:

1. Reform of the Seasonal Employment Act
2. Establishment of a Labour Mobility Regulatory Council regulating licencing and permits, and referring complaints and investigations to Police
3. Registration of approved chiefs and church leaders and procedures for character reference letters, supported by MOUs with the Malvatumauri and Vanuatu Christian Council
4. Government services linked to labour mobility registration accessible at provincial and area council levels with dedicated support from ESU provincial labour mobility officers
5. Training, workshops and business development support for agents

Pillar 2: Data collection, systems and coordination

Policy Objective: To effectively coordinate the collection of data to improve programme accountability and compliance, and enable data-driven evidence-based decisions on the strategic direction of the labour mobility programmes

The policy priorities of the LM Policy 2019 made specific reference to establishing a database for collecting, analysing and publishing data on labour mobility and monitoring its social and economic impacts (Priority 10) and through the strategic actions of Priority 4 a national database on human resource capacity and graduates and arrangements set up to exchange of information on skills requirements.

This Policy Objective aims to address a significant gap area in the management of labour mobility in Vanuatu, limiting the capacity of the Government to effectively measure, monitor and strategically direct Vanuatu's engagement and performance in the labour mobility programmes. The Priority Areas under this Policy Objective build on Priority 4 and 10 of the LM Policy 2019, the existing technological infrastructure and capacity available and provide the foundation for each of the other Pillars to be achieved under this Policy.

A labour mobility national database exists, the In-Country Recruitment Database (IRD), and has significant capacity and technical support available to fulfil the Outputs that relate to the use of the IRD throughout this Policy. The Policy Outputs under this Pillar therefore use the IRD as the technology infrastructure to address key issues in data collection, systems and coordination, which provide solutions to mitigate negative social impacts, facilitate more inclusive recruitment, enable strategic decision-making and actions to be taken around labour supply management and reintegration programmes, and better monitor and report on the prevalence of in-country worker and employer issues.

The IRD will collect data on workers registered in the Work Ready Pool and mobilised through the ESU and agents, which can be extracted at any point in time if effectively and reliably used. This data can be disaggregated to identify workers by age, sex, marital status, qualifications, participation rates, residency and report on numbers of workers actively engaged in or having returned from labour mobility programmes (currently not available within Vanuatu), and in which countries, programmes/schemes, sectors and again participation rates in training or skills development training or accurate reports on worker welfare, blacklisting or disengagement issues.

Other countries around the region are already been successful in using the expanded capacities of their IRDs, for example through the creation of self-registration apps created for the Work Ready Pool (Solomon Islands has registered 40,000 workers online) and registration available at the district level enabled by training of district officers (Fiji and Tonga), and cross-agency integrations and information sharing for example with social services.

If Vanuatu aims to maintain, or even grow, its market share in the Pacific labour mobility programmes, developing the capacity, improving the user uptake and promoting the efficiencies of a recruitment and worker management system via the IRD will be fundamental to achieving this.

Priority Areas:

1. Increasing adoption of the In-Country Recruitment Database (IRD) to improve recruitment and mobilisation administration, transparency and efficiency, with appropriate data privacy protocols in place
2. Expanding the functionality to collect data required to implement the Labour Mobility Supply Management and Reintegration Strategy
3. Improving the accessibility of the IRD to support decentralised registration and recruitment processes
4. Coordinated cross-agency information and data sharing and integrations to monitor compliance with social protections and security checks

Policy Outputs:

1. Mandatory registration of all labour mobility workers on the IRD pre-departure

Pillar 3: Labour Mobility Supply Management and Reintegration Strategy

Policy Objective: To strategically approach Vanuatu's engagement in labour mobility programmes to increase decent work opportunities, skills transfer and reintegration success to support sustainable livelihoods, community development and economic growth

Enhancing the 'skill base and better matching skills development to Vanuatu's labour needs', strengthening the economic benefits of labour mobility, and enhancing Vanuatu's skill base and skills development were all Policy Priorities under the LM Policy 2019 (Policy Statements A, B and D). The priorities under these statements focused on ensuring national education and training institutes delivered training to meet the demand for skills by labour mobility employers (Priority 3), ensuring qualified graduates could respond to overseas employment opportunities (Priority 4), requiring that workers provide a 'written statement' on what their intentions were to use their savings on return, and exemptions on taxes and duties for labour mobility workers (Priority 8).

The Priority Areas under this Policy align to these general policy statements however, they pivot the focus from enhancing employability of ni-Vanuatu workers for overseas employers towards strategically pursuing labour mobility arrangements that provide the best 'return on investment' in terms contractual terms and working conditions, skills transfer and training opportunities for ni-Vanuatu workers in terms of sustainable livelihoods and economic growth in Vanuatu. As the Pacific Island country with currently the highest sending numbers of workers to Australia and New Zealand under the Pacific labour mobility programmes, Vanuatu has proven its capacity to provide quality labour to overseas employers. The Priority Areas below now signify the Vanuatu Government's commitment to shift perceptions and experiences of labour mobility as a labour hire programme to a development programme.

The Priority Outputs below focus on addressing key issues in Vanuatu's engagement with labour mobility that limit economic development benefits for individual workers, community development and the domestic labour market. The development of a Labour Mobility Supply Management & Reintegration Strategy will identify the human resources needed, sectors to focus on, opportunities to pursue and support required to see growth Vanuatu's domestic economy and community development through labour mobility. Data, direction of the Strategy. Increased reintegration focused support available at each step of the circular mobility process from pre-departure to in-country and on return to Vanuatu combined with targeted pilot programmes will enable monitoring and evaluation of the impacts to inform future decisions and adjustments to the Strategy. There are significant gaps in the linkages between workers participation in the existing schemes with skills transfer and capacity building linked to economic growth. More accessible skills recognition and skills development support (including e-learning) and better coordination and cooperation between G2F and domestic stakeholders aim to address this.

Recent reports indicate that 80 percent of private sector businesses have lost workers to labour mobility schemes over a 12-month period and highlight significant skills shortages in key economic sectors in Vanuatu. Consultation findings also indicate that while most workers benefit from participation in the form of improved standards of living (permanent houses, water tanks, solar power and school fees), benefits in the form of career development, investment opportunities or entrepreneurship within Vanuatu are significantly less common. There are also very few coordinated community development programmes linked to the labour mobility programmes for workers to contribute to, which for many communities limits the distribution of benefits to the individual workers and their immediate families. Additionally, there are communities where excessive supply of working age community members to the labour mobility programmes has changed the dynamics around community work and in at least one, resulted in depopulation that threatens the provision of government services in the near future. The Policy Outputs developing guidelines and training on community development through labour mobility and pilot projects for community and private sector development aim to address these issues by demonstrating positive impacts through measurable indicators.

Priority Areas:

1. Expanding and improving accessibility of programme support and capacity building opportunities to workers, families and communities, with opportunities provided for workers to engage at each step of the circular mobility success to support reintegration success
2. Strategic identification and targeted engagement with programmes and employers providing decent work opportunities that connect to ni-Vanuatu workers' and Vanuatu's development goals
3. Identification and promotion of investment, entrepreneurship and career opportunities for labour mobility workers in Vanuatu that will support private sector and economic growth
4. Monitoring and only if necessary, recommending limits to Vanuatu's participation in labour mobility programmes to mitigate negative impacts on the domestic labour market provided there is adequate data to justify imposing limitations and improved cooperation and coordination with private sector and public service employers.

impacting economic growth by increasing ease of access to foreign workers

Policy Outputs:

1. Labour Mobility Supply Management & Reintegration Strategy
2. Integrated Skills Recognition, E-Learning and Recruitment Platform
3. Guidelines and Training on Community Development through Labour Mobility
4. Pilot Projects on Community Development & Private Sector Development through Labour Mobility, including the establishment of apprenticeship schemes
5. Amendments to immigration and labour laws and regulations relating to issuance of work permits and visas, including review of the reserved occupations list

Pillar 4: Child-centred, family and community social protections

Policy Objective: To have social protection measures and safeguards in place to reduce the negative impacts of participation in labour mobility schemes on children, families and communities

The LM Policy 2019 included a Policy Statement on strengthening the social benefits of labour mobility by supporting 'workers, their families and communities to find ways to extend the benefits and reduce negative impacts of labour mobility' (Policy Statement D: Priority 8). Support was intended to be identified through an 'end of contract' evaluation and debriefing for workers (Strategic Action (a)).

Although there have been efforts to carry out debriefing surveys, this has not been consistent with all returned workers and this Strategic Action remains unimplemented. The negative social impacts of participation in the labour mobility programmes have also become significantly more prevalent over the lifespan of the LM Policy 2019, with perceptions and experiences of children becoming 'victims' of the labour mobility programmes. The Pillar 4 objective therefore approaches the issues around social impacts through a child-centred social protection approach, positioning the welfare of children as the primary concern in each of the Priority Areas.

The Priority Outputs provide the mechanisms (preventative and responsive) to facilitate the Pillar 4 Priority Areas and address issues of children being separated from one or both parents for significant amounts of time (including poor school attendance or removal from school) and the additional burden on grandparents or extended family to provide and care for the children of labour mobility workers; the deterioration of family structures and relationships; and the increasing frequency in which communities are exposed to anti-social behaviours (predominately alcohol related) from returned workers compromising safety within communities.

Priority Areas:

1. Mitigating the negative impacts of separation from children, family and community arising from participation in labour mobility programmes before workers engage in the programmes
2. Increasing government services and support to families, communities and schools to identify, report, assess and manage child welfare cases arising from parents participating in labour mobility programmes
3. Develop mechanisms to restrict both parents of children from participating in labour mobility programmes at the same time without prior child welfare assessments being carried out
4. Addressing and implementing measures to reduce anti-social behaviours in communities, particularly involving alcohol and drug abuse, of returned labour mobility workers
5. Improving the capacity of families and communities to prepare and respond to natural disasters, pandemics and other unforeseen circumstances when workers are overseas and identifying opportunities for workers to provide better support for families and communities while overseas

Policy Outputs:

1. Expanded delivery and accessibility of effective pre-departure workshops helping workers and families mitigate the negative impacts of labour mobility participation
2. Increased resources (human resources and capacity) to key agencies to effectively manage child welfare cases and carryout gender and social impact analysis
3. Negative impacts of family separation mitigation through review and future changes to programme eligibility following initial gender and social impact assessment
4. Resources and training provided to communities to plan for and respond to natural disasters and adapt to climate change
5. SOPs developed in accordance with the Ministry of Education's Child Safeguarding Policy to notify and respond to child welfare cases involving children of labour mobility programmes
6. Delivery of community awareness programmes facilitated by the Police in collaboration with community leaders on compliance reporting, alcohol and drug abuse, violence and other anti-social behaviours in connection to labour mobility participation
7. Temporary cessation and review of Vanuatu's engagement in the PALM Long (PLS) to address long-term impacts of family separation

Pacific Australia labour mobility scheme

Pillar 5: Worker welfare and benefits

Policy Objective: To promote and advocate for better working conditions and contractual terms, more accessible in-country support and benefits for ni-Vanuatu workers engaged in labour mobility programmes

The LM Policy 2019 approached the prioritisation of worker welfare and benefits through a range of priority areas. They focused on the establishment of 'responsive and reliable relationships with recruiters, key focal points, liaison officers and government representatives involved' in labour mobility, with 'liaison officers' as key actors in each action plan (Priority 6); the development of a 'Code of Expected Behaviour' for workers (Priority 7); proposals for import tax and duty exemptions in Vanuatu (Priority 8); and bi-annual reviews of the bi-lateral agreements between labour mobility sending and receiving countries (Priority 9).

The Priority Areas under this Policy Objective build on the approach of using liaison officers (Priority 6), now in existence (though limited) and referred to as Country Liaison Officers (CLOs), to increase support to workers for welfare issues and manage issues with contract terms or working conditions, and review of the bi-lateral agreements (Priority 9) to increase the benefits for workers. The Priority Areas pivot away from the approach of increasing benefits to workers by reducing import tax and duty for workers, and refocus on reducing compulsory expenditure for all workers that contribute to high income deductions compared to other participating countries in the Pacific Islands region. They also shift from a compliance focused approach to controlling worker behaviour overseas (Code of Expected Behaviour or Code of Conduct), which has enforcement limitations, to more engagement and support to workers pre-departure to bring about greater awareness of the consequences of anti-social behaviour in both Vanuatu and overseas, disengagement and better awareness of their legal and contractual rights.

The Priority Outputs provide a general approach for pursuing the Pillar 5 Priority Areas, which are accompanied by activities the 3-year Action Plan (Annex I).

Priority Areas:

1. Review the Deeds of Agreement and MOUs for existing labour mobility programmes and work with receiving country Governments on areas that will increase benefits for ni-Vanuatu workers
2. Improve and address working conditions, employer compliance and other contributing factors resulting in increasing numbers of workers disengaging
3. Reducing deductions and other required expenditure for workers engaged in labour mobility to increase remittances and earnings re-entering Vanuatu
4. Increasing support to ni-Vanuatu workers in-country to improve worker welfare, ensure workers' rights and interests are understood and safeguarded and reduce anti-social behaviours risking Vanuatu's reputation as a quality labour supply sending country

Policy Outputs:

1. Deeds of Agreement, MOUs and visas/visa conditions attached to labour mobility programmes align with international standards, as they apply to sending and receiving countries, and increase benefits for ni-Vanuatu workers
2. Increased support to workers both pre-departure and in-country
3. Rates and fees services provided to ni-Vanuatu labour mobility workers are reduced through negotiation with private sector and other service providers

4 Implementation Arrangements

4.1 Action Plan 2024/25 – 2026/27

This Policy is to be implemented in accordance with the Action Plan in Annex I. The Action Plan activities are based on the Policy Outputs detailed under each of the Policy Pillars in Section 3 above. The Action Plan has also been developed to accommodate the Policy Output Recommendations included in Annex III.

4.2 Policy Governance and Institutional Arrangements

The Policy governance and institutional arrangements will evolve through the implementation of the Policy Outputs under Pillar 1. The sub-sections below provide direction for the governance framework, monitoring and evaluation (M&E), and key implementation stakeholders and their roles.

4.2.1 Governance Framework

The governance structure for labour mobility in Vanuatu is provided below.

The National Trade Development Committee (NTDC) is the nation's highest-level trade governance body, established by a Council of Ministers' decision in 2012 to lead Vanuatu's Trade Mainstreaming agenda. Its secretariat is provided by the Vanuatu Aid-for-Trade Management Unit. It is an effective, functioning body with regular participation of all key stakeholders for trade policy issues and provides a platform for discussing the trade development agenda but also has oversight on aid-for-trade funding and expenditure. The mandate of the NTDC includes labour mobility development and policy, and consequently has overall oversight of this Policy and its implementation. It will also function to ensure that this Policy's implementation and its activities align with, and support, other national trade policies and the National Trade Policy Framework, and ensure that there are adequate resources and funding to implement the activities.

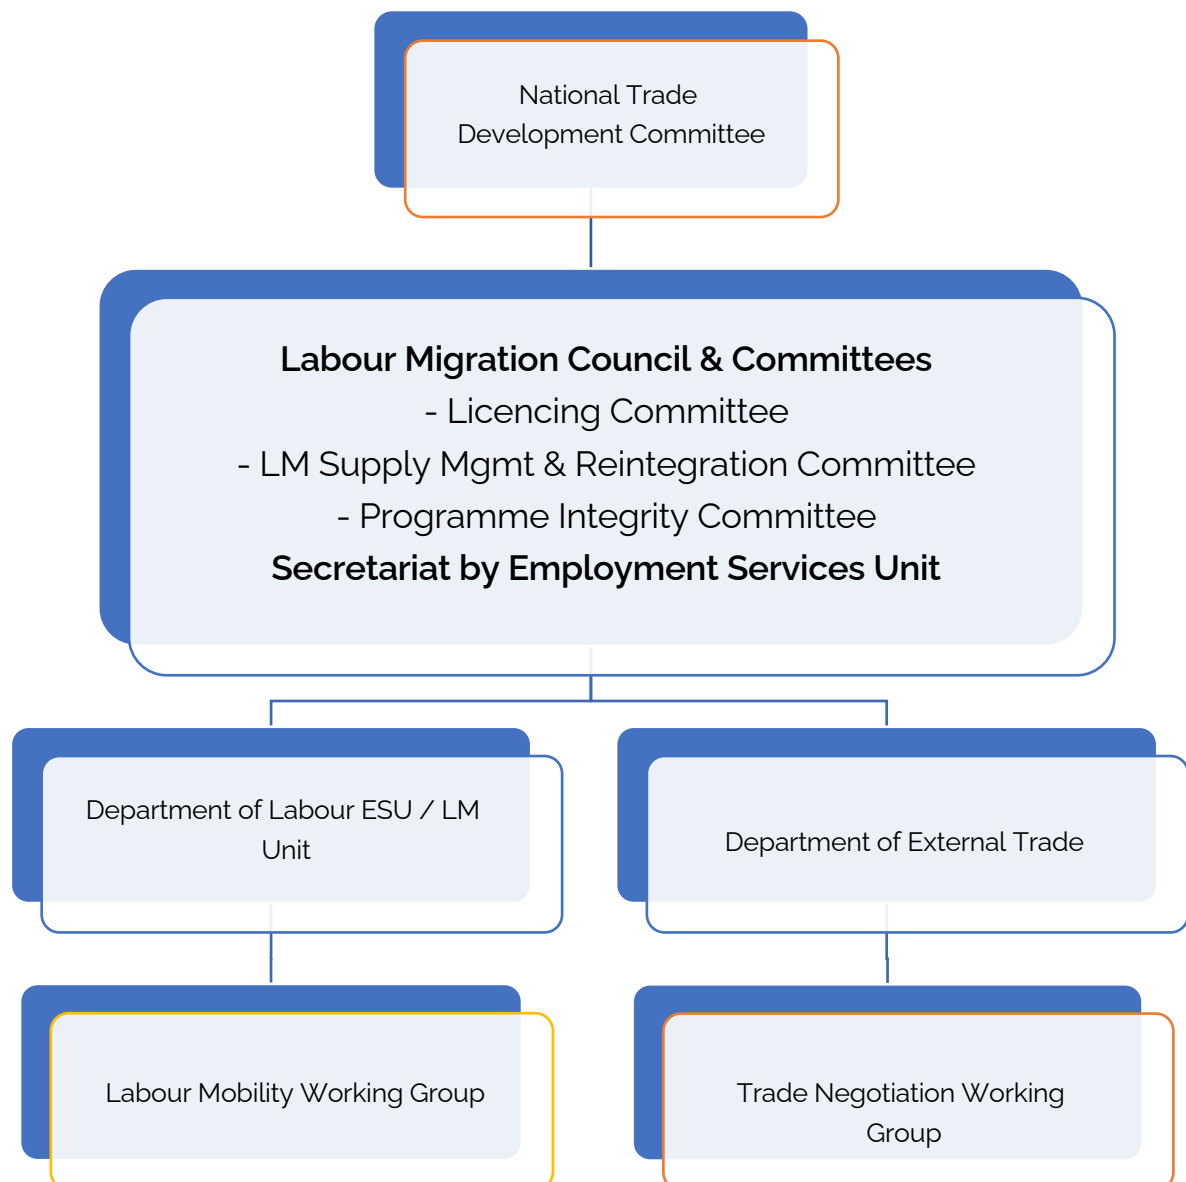

The Labour Migration Council will be established through amendments to the Seasonal Employment Act, with representation from the 6 key Ministries of the Vanuatu Government responsible for national policies that connect to this Policy, as well as implementation of activities under this Policy's Action Plan. Each of the Ministries represented on the Labour Migration Council are responsible for monitoring and reporting progress on the implementation of the activities that are to be carried out by agencies under their Ministry. Additional membership from key stakeholders is also proposed to ensure there are adequate resources to establish Committees for: Licencing, LM Supply & Reintegration; and Programme Integrity. Each of these Committees are tasked and report back to the Labour Migration Council, which provides annual reports for submission to the NTDC and Parliament with information performance of the LM programmes under the MOUs / IAAs, any implementation issues and recommendations on addressing Policy implementation issues or managing new labour mobility policy or strategy developments are they arise (and not addressed by this Policy). The Labour Migration Council will be will be Co-Chaired by the Director General of the Ministry of Internal Affairs and Director General the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. The Department of Labour will provide dedicated secretariat support to the Labour Migration Council and should meet quarterly. The Committees can meet more regularly as determined by Terms of Reference (ToR).

The Department of Labour, and the Employment Services Unit and future Labour Mobility Unit, are responsible for the management of Vanuatu's labour mobility programmes and related activities under this Policy. They are the lead agency or key stakeholder for the majority of the Policy activities under the Action Plan and are responsible for reporting to the Labour Migration Council and NTDC on all activities under the Action Plan in which they are the lead agency. This includes the reform of the Seasonal Employment Act and the establishment of the Programme Integrity Committee and its secretariat, and any recommendations communicated by the Labour Mobility Working Group.

The Department of External Trade is primarily responsible for negotiating Labour Mobility market access; coordinating the implementation of the Labour Mobility Policy Vanuatu's trade agreements including PACER Plus; and advocating and coordinating for Vanuatu's interests internationally and regionally, with direction from and in coordination and collaboration with the Department of Labour.

The figure below provides an overview of the governance framework for the Policy.

4.2.3 Monitoring and Evaluation

Lead agencies for activities under the Action Plan are to report on the implementation progress and if relevant to the activity, monitoring and evaluation (M&E) reports, for active activities every 6 months (according to the allocated years for those activities under the Action Plan).

The Labour Migration Council is responsible for the coordination and collation of the implementation progress and M&E reports every 6 months. These reports, once compiled may be shared with the Labour Mobility Working Group (LMWG) for review and recommendations before finalisation and submission to the NTDC.

The NTDC may provide directives to lead agencies and other key implementing agencies in relation to implementation progress following review of these reports.

4.3 Risk Assessment & Management Framework

Risks to the successful implementation of a policy are inherent in all policy implementation arrangements. Many risks can be anticipated, assessed and either mitigated or managed. Potential risks to the implementation of this Policy, in Vanuatu's context, have been identified and fall under the categories of: Economic Risks; Capacity Risks; Political Risks; Technological Risks; and Natural Disasters & Pandemic Risks. Possible ways in which these risks categories can manifest and impact the success of the Policy, as well as the measures to management these risks are detailed in Annex II.
